

CONTRIBUTORS

Jana Marguerite Bennett is Assistant Professor of Theological Ethics at the University of Dayton. She has written on moral theology in relation to marriage, feminism, disability, and most recently, the internet. She is the author of Water Is Thicker than Blood: An Augustinian Theology of Marriage and Singlehood (Oxford University Press) and Aquinas on the Web: Doing Theology in an Internet Age (Continuum).

Lisa Sowle Cahill is the J. Donald Monan Professor of Theology at Boston College. She researches and writes in the history of Christian ethics, social ethics, sex and gender, bioethics, and war and peace. Her most recent books include Theological Bioethics: Participation, Justice, and Change (Georgetown University Press) and Genetics, Theology, Ethics: An Interdisciplinary Conversation (Crossroads).

John S. Grabowski is an Associate Professor of Moral Theology at Catholic University's School of Theology and Religious Studies. He works in the areas of fundamental moral theology, marriage, sexual ethics, and virtue theory. He is the author of Sex and Virtue: An Introduction to Sexual Ethics (The Catholic University of America Press).

David Hollenbach, S.J. is the University Chair in Human Rights and International Justice as well as the Director of the Center for Human Rights and International Justice at Boston College. He works in the areas of social ethics, Catholic social teaching, and politics. His latest books include Driven from Home: Protecting the Rights of Forced Migrants (Georgetown University Press) and The Global Face of Public Faith: Politics, Human Rights, and Christian Ethics (Georgetown University Press).

James F. Keenan, S.J. is the Founders Professor of Theology at Boston College. He has written books in the areas of fundamental moral theology, history of theological ethics, virtue ethics, and living the Christian life. Two of his recent works are A History of Catholic Moral Theology in the Twentieth Century: From Confessing Sins to Liberating Consciences (Continuum) and The Ethics of the Word: Voices in the Catholic Church Today (Rowman and Littlefield).

Craig Steven Titus is an Associate Professor as well as the Director of Integrative Studies at The Institute for the Psychological Sciences. He serves as the Vice-Director of the Servais Pinckaers, O.P. Archives in Fribourg, Switzerland. He is the author of Resilience and the Virtue of Fortitude: Aquinas in Dialogue with the Psychosocial Sciences and co-editor of The Pinckaers Reader: Renewing Thomistic Moral Theology, both published by The Catholic University of America Press.