

Scholarship Statement: Foreign Language

Mount St. Mary's University

Scholarship in the field of foreign languages and literatures consists of a variety of activities that advance these disciplines that are public and are subject to peer review. Included are research that leads to the publication of a book, a journal article, an article in an anthology, a book review, the editing of an anthology, a translation, and the annotating of an original text or translated text, as well as the preparation and presentation of a paper at a colloquium or conference. Scholarship also includes activities which promote the understanding of these disciplines. Such activities may include securing grants, textbook publications and research leading to publication in educational practices on foreign languages and literatures.
